

Letter from Alexander Melville Bell to Alexander Graham Bell, December 11, 1876, with transcript

December 11th, 76. (Enclosed with letter of E. G. B. of Dec. 10th, 76.) My dear Al.,

The arrangement with Mr. Packert was $1.00 for each matrix. Types will of course be paid for by myself. On May 30th, I sent you $100.00, out of which you were to pay for an album and a frame (amounting to between five and six dollars) and settle for matrices and types. You had therefore $94.00 remitted on Packert account. I have seen no public notice of the V. S. Centennial medal. Have you got it? Is the Japanese student with you? No one was in Town yesterday, so this letter is a day late in being posted. Love to Mabel, who is I hope safe at home.

Your affectionate father, Alex. Melville Bell. P. S. You have never sent back your Uncle Edward's letter- the last one- I have not answered it, and have asked for it more than once. Papa's hurt thigh is quite well. E. G. B.
